Thinning Garden

Thinning in the home garden should be taken by degrees. Where plants are grown in drills, the first thinning should be done as soon as the plants are large enough to handle, and gardener should make sure that each seedling stands by itself at least an inch from its neighbor. It is a mistake to discard all excess plants prematurely, since accidents, insects or diseases may destroy many of those which are left. But as the plants grow, they should be thinned until they stand at the optimum distance from each other. When bare spaces occur in the row, excess plants may be transplanted to fill the gaps. Even tap rooted plants such as beets and carrots are often successfully transplanted by careful amateurs. It is possible to use the thinnings from many crops such as lettuce, endive, chard and beets which is another reason why this operation may be performed by easy stages.

THE COAL STRIKE HAS ENDED . . .

ALL RATIONING OF ELECTRICITY LIFTED

The State Corporation Commission has lifted all Rationing of Electricity in Virginia

ON SETTLEMENT of the coal strike, the State Corporation Commission of Virginia immediately removed all rationing of Electricity, including the last remaining restriction, including the "brownout."

This means that the approximately 1,750,000 people in the formerly rationed area may now command the vast electrical energy of this Company—any second of the night or day—at the touch of finger on a switch in home, office, store or factory.

All at prewar low prices—thanks to the men and women of this company who have worked hard to make electricity so economical friendly and dependable—around the clock. You may now again use all you want.

Tire Shortage Is Threatened

Lack of Textiles Reduces Civilian Output Say Manufacturers.

NEW YORK. — The day when civilian tires again will be available in normal supply may be carried further into next year because of an acute shortage of textile fabrics, the Rubber Manufacturers association, Inc., warns.

Some tire manufacturers already are threatened with curtailment of production for want of fabrics, the association said. Others, with only a small portion of their second quarter requirements assured, foresee shutdowns unless supplies of enameling duck, chafers, osnaburgs and sheeting are materially eased.

This means at least another reason of close attention to the wartime tire conservation practices including recapping, careful inflation and moderate driving speeds, particularly in the hot weather driving period just ahead, the report added.

Cuts into Output.

With the automobile industry making heavier inroads into tire output for original equipment supplies, shutdowns resulting from textile shortages could easily defeat efforts of rubber manufacturers to achieve their goal of 66 million passenger car tires this year, the association said.

The warning came with the association's figures showing January production up over December by 913,467 units in passenger sizes, 241,446 units in truck and bus tire sizes and 680,911 units in all types of inner tubes.

January shipments of casings totaled 5,337,154, an increase of 28.86 per cent from December and compared with 3,630,757 produced in January last year. Passenger casings accounted for 4,380,997 or 27.25 per cent over December and compared with 1,953,946 a year previous. Truck and bus casings shipments of 1,156,157 showed an increase of 35.36 per cent over December and compared with 1,767,811 in January, 1945.

Passenger, truck and bus tube shipments in January totaled 4,286,947, an increase of 17.91 per cent over December and compared with 3,008,910 shipped in January, 1945.

Increase in casings.

Casings produced during January totaled 5,972,700, an increase of 23.97 per cent over December and compared with 3,746,590 produced in January, 1945. Production included 4,705,099 passenger casings, an increase of 24.09 per cent over December and compared with 1,974,390 produced in January, 1945. Truck and bus casings produced during January totaled 1,267,686, an increase of 23.52 per cent over December and compared with 1,772,200 in January a year previous.

Passenger, truck and bus tubes produced during January rose to 4,639,762, an increase of 17.20 over December and compared with 3,-368,935 produced in January, 1945.

Inventory of passenger, truck and bus casings at the end of January totaled 3,436,033, an increase of 4.43 per cent over December and compared with 2,013,251 for January, 1945.

Passenger casings inventories totaled 2,481,053, an increase of 15.32 per cent over December and compared with 1,156,414 a year previous.

Truck and bus casings inventories stood at 954,980, an increase of 12.20 per cent compared with December and 856,837 during January a year previous. Passenger truck and bus tubes inventories at the end of January totaled 4,120,973, an increase of 12.26 per cent compared with December and 2,974,924 at the end of January.

State Tobacco Tax Revenues Show Rise

State cigarette and tobacco tax revenue for 1945 totaled $164,200,000, an increase of 8.3 per cent over 1944. In a report of the federation of tax administrators, the spurt in sales following the end of the war and the imposition of higher tax rates in some states are listed as the reasons for the increase in revenue.

A rise of 11.9 per cent in federal tobacco tax collections for the year was also reported. The federal revenue from this source in 1945 totaled $937,200,000.

Although all states recorded an increase in cigarette and tobacco tax returns, eight states listed a jump in revenue of 10 per cent or more. The three staves with the greatest percentage of increase had raised their tax rates on tobacco during the year. Massachusetts headed the other states with an increase of 38.2 per cent. Florida showed an increase of 27.8 per cent and Connecticut followed in third place with a rise of 15.8 per cent.

Woman Alone on Island 15 Days Saved by Guard

Tells of Wreck of Ship in Which Her Husband and Friend Perished.

LOS ANGELES. — A 43-year-old woman, rescued by the coast guard after two weeks on an uninhabited island off the Southern California coast, told of a shipwreck in which her husband and a friend presumably perished.

Mrs. Bernice Brown, Van Nuys, Calif., was rescued by a coast guard crash boat. She was taken from rocky Anacapa island, 25 miles west of Santa Monica, after her daughter, Mrs. Maxine Trader, reported her parents were five days overdue from a fishing trip.

Saw Signal Fire.

Sighting the signal fire she had kept burning on the beach for nine days, coastguardsmen returned Mrs. Brown to Port Hueneme, Calif., where navy doctors said she had recovered sufficiently to be taken home.

She told of setting out March 2 with her husband, Roy Brown, 42, and John Barta, 38, Long Beach. They had expected to return March 11 or 12.

The next day the boat ran into a gale which whipped up huge rollers that flooded the engine room.

"We cast off in a small skiff," she said. "A wave washed my husband overboard. He grabbed the skiff but it capsized.

"When I came up, I managed to swim to the fishing boat which was now swamped and got on the bow. A huge wave washed me away as though I was a fly. When I came up again, both Roy and Johnny were gone."

Grabs Gas Drums.

Mrs. Brown said she sighted two floating gas drums, one of which she grasped. The sharp edges cut her hands to the bone.

All afternoon and until nightfall she clung to the drum until it was washed close to a rock on which she took refuge. She lay there semi-conscious until the morning of March 4 when she swam 300 yards to Anacapa Island and found a hut stocked with emergency rations, apparently established by the navy.

For the next four days, Mrs. Brown said, she was barely able to move enough to obtain food, but on March 8 she was able to build the first of her signal fires.

Several boats passed without sighting her fire, she said, and she was becoming worried about her food supplies when rescue arrived.

Attends Wife's Funeral, Sailor Jailed as A.W.O.L.

WALNUT CREEK, CALIF. — A navy mother has disclosed her son had written he was serving a 60-day sentence in the guardhouse at New London, Conn., for attending his wife's funeral without official authority.

Mrs. Ruby Adams said her son, Jack, 20, as a coxswain and a veteran of the Normandy landings and numerous Atlantic convoys, had courted Miss Marian Hagerty of Roxbury, Mass., for the last year. On January 14 he was informed that she was critically ill and would probably die. He married her and three days later she died.

Mrs. Adams said Jack wrote he requested permission to attend his bride's funeral. Permission was denied but he attended the rites anyway. A court-martial and a 60-day sentence followed.

At the New London submarine base a public relations officer said he could not give out any information.

Leaps From Moving Bus To Save Life of Child

CLEARFIELD, PA.—In a dramatic, split-second rescue, James R. Smay, 16, snatched two-year-old Frances J. Painter to safety from the path of an oncoming freight train—even though he had to jump from a bus and sprint 100 yards to make it.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smay of Clearfield, R. D. 1, was riding in the school bus near here when one of his companions saw the little girl on the tracks as the train approached.

Gilbert Bloom, bus driver, slowed the bus and asked James if he thought he could reach the girl in time. Crying "Yes," the boy leaped from the bus before it came to a standstill.

The little girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Painter of nearby Hogback, had wandered from her home only a few minutes earlier.

Reveal Plot to Fire U. S. Depot in London

LONDON.—U. S. military authorities asked Scotland Yard to help investigate an alleged plot to fire the U. S. army special services section offices and depot, which occupies four floors of a London department store.

The authorities said that large quantities of motion picture film had been unreeled in the store room section and other inflammable materials had been distributed. Fire extinguishers on three floors occupied by the section were empties and many of them were smashed.

Forest View

Forest View, June 3.- The farmers are busy with their crops and gardens, which are looking very well after so much cool weather.

Mrs. J. B. Marshall has returned home after spending the winter with her sister in West Virginia. She was accompanied home by her nephew, Bob Miller, of California, who has returned home from service overseas.

T. H. Ford spent the week in the home of his neice, Mrs. W. T. Thomas to be with his sick sister, Mrs. Ford, who passed away last week.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Simms, of Lynchburg spent last Friday in the home of Jim A. Martin.

Mr. and Mrs. Chap Nash attended all-day services at Bethel Church near Gladys last Sunday.

We guess the graduates of Appomattox and other high schools are all enthused over receiving diplomas. That means getting out going to work, ha.

We congratulate every one.

We have been having right many electrical storms and some damage being done by lightning. The house in which John Painter lives, we are told, was struck by lightning last week and wires burned out at Nash's store, and the community was without lights for awhile.

SALESMANSHIP

A hawker, his truck filled with paper and envelopes, was yelling, "Here y'are! Box o' paper an' 25 envelopes on'y one dime!" Another hawker, crowding the first out of the way, shouted as he pushed a bigger truck: "Five cents—box o' paper an' 25 envelopes! Only one nickel!" The two men glared at each other. The spirit of competition ran high. Finding the two kinds of paper identical, people bought the cheaper. The more the dime man shouted, the more of his rival's stock people bought. Finally sales ceased. Everybody had bought enough to last a year. The dime man departed first, the nickel man a few minutes later. The dime man, waiting around the corner piled his stock on the other's nearly empty truck and said with a chuckle, "It works fine, Bill, don't it?"

GOING TOO FAR

A fellow was sitting on a park bench asleep and there were about 25 flies on his nose. He woke up, looked at the flies and was too lazy to brush them off, so he fell asleep again. Finally a bee came along and stung him right on the nose. He woke up with a start and said, "There's always got to be a smart aleck in the crowd. Just for that, everybody off!"
